Crosswalk cameras urged

Not a cash grab. Coun. Ross Eadie says it's about making pedestrian corridors safer

JOHN TOWNS
winnipeg@metronews.ca

A Winnipeg councillor is moving for a system similar to the city's controversial red-light cameras to be installed at crosswalks in an effort to make them safer for pedestrians.

Coun. Ross Eadie (Mynarski) says he's heard a number of complaints from residents in his ward about drivers not obeying the rules of crosswalks and pedestrians at risk.

"Cars are supposed to stay stopped until the pedestrian gets to the other side of the curb. Sometimes, when they pull ahead before that, it can lead to other drivers following suit, even if the lane in front of them isn't safely cleared yet," noted Eadie, who says he's had issues with cars blowing through pedestrian crossings when he's been using them on at least three occasions.

Eadie, who is blind, says that if he'd taken one more step, he

Pedestrians

Eadie notes that part of the problem with standalone crosswalks also lies with how some pedestrians use them.

- Pedestrians, he says, should take care to make sure they're using crosswalks properly – pressing the button and then waiting for the crosswalk to clear and vehicles to stop completely before proceeding.
- Cyclists, Eadie notes, should also be abiding by the rules and dismounting their bikes if they want to use a pedestrian crosswalk.

would have been hit.

"It can be dangerous out there if drivers aren't taking the proper caution," he said.

The system Eadie envisions would be something like red-light cameras, and it would activate after a pedestrian pushes the button and a couple of seconds have gone by for cars to clear the crosswalk. Tickets would be issued to the owners of vehicles that violate the crosswalk space.

Eadie will be heading before the Police Board on Friday in support of his motion to have the board direct the Winnipeg Police Service to further investigate the technology and costs behind implementing a pedestrian-crossing camera system.

"The technology does exist and has been utilized in at least one other city," Eadie noted, referencing a similar system in Washington, D.C., which tickets violators $250 when they disobey the rules at a crosswalk.

Eadie stresses that the cameras would not be about generating revenue for the city; they are designed to make the safety of pedestrians a priority by punishing drivers who break the law.

Natural-gas rate hike gets approval

Natural-gas rates are on the rise again in Manitoba.

The Public Utilities Board has approved an increase of 6.4 per cent, or about $50 a year, for the average homeowner.

The rate hike is to take effect Feb. 1, and follows a 1.4 per cent increase last November.

Natural-gas prices have jumped in North America due to a frigid winter in many areas that has increased demand for heating fuel.

Health. Hospital operating rooms could be shut for weeks: WRHA chief

The president and chief medical officer of the Winnipeg Regional Health Authority says it may take weeks to sort out the situation caused by flooding in 14 operating rooms at St. Boniface Hospital, but wants to assure Winnipeggers the WRHA has things "very much under control."

Dr. Brock Wright says that a fault in circulation pumps at the hospital's air handling system caused water to freeze and crack some of the coils used for temperature regulation, leading to a leak that forced surgical operations at St. Boniface to shut down for the time being.

The WRHA, says Wright, has cancelled a number of elective surgeries and is shifting procedures to the Grace Hospital and Health Sciences Centre to cope with the loss of the 14 operating rooms at St. Boniface.

"We appreciate the impact cancelling these surgeries has on patients and their families," he said during a press conference Thursday afternoon. "We'll be working very hard once the situation improves to re-book those procedures as soon as possible."

As of Thursday afternoon at least 141 elective surgeries had been cancelled and will be rescheduled, while three emergency surgeries have been re-directed from St. Boniface to other facilities.

SHANE GIBSON

A handful of the Canadian musicians who will take on a team of former NHL players for the annual Juno Cup fundraising game coming up during Juno Week in Winnipeg took to the ice Thursday to get ready for their big match up.

"It raises money for MusiCounts, which is a charity that helps raise money for music programs in schools," explained the musician's team captain and Blue Rodeo front man, Jim Cuddy.

"The fact that music programs are under siege is very disappointing ... kids need to have an outlet that's not just standard arts and sciences."

Cuddy was joined on the ice by his son Devin of The Devin Cuddy Band, JP Hoe, Stephen Carroll of The Weakerthans and Vince Fontaine of Eagle & Hawk and Indian City.

Justin Bieber arrested in Miami, charged with DUI

Hard to Belieb. A bratty teen pop star, alcohol, drugs, a yellow Lamborghini — what could go wrong?

When he debuted five years ago, Justin Bieber was a mop-haired heartthrob, clean cut and charming. But a series of troubling incidents have put his innocent image at risk, and none more so than his arrest on DUI charges Thursday.

Police say they arrested a bleary-eyed Bieber — smelling of alcohol — after officers saw him drag-racing before dawn on a residential street, his yellow Lamborghini travelling at nearly twice the speed limit.

The 19-year-old singer later admitted smoking marijuana, drinking and taking a prescription medication, police say. Unlike previous dustups, this arrest has him facing potential jail time.

Bieber was charged with DUI, driving with an expired licence and resisting arrest without violence. His Miami-Dade County jail mug shot showed the singer smiling in a bright red inmate jumpsuit, his hair still stylishly coiffed.

Bieber made his initial court appearance via a video link from jail. Bieber's bond was set at $2,500.

Bieber left jail about an hour after his court appearance, popping through a window of his black SUV in a black hoodie and sunglasses to wave to crowds of reporters and young girls waiting to see him.

Going down? Diners bored while waiting on Ford, who was stuck between floors

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford arrived more than an hour late for a lunch-hour speech to the Economic Club of Canada today, saying he had been stuck in an elevator for 45 minutes.

The president and CEO of the club said she was trapped in the same elevator with Ford. Rhiannon Traill said the group took a freight elevator to "avoid all the traffic" in the lobby.

Ford was "so calm and gracious" during the ordeal, Traill said, noting they discussed his speech and his campaign for re-election.

"Unfortunately, we were stuck in between floors so they couldn't get us out for a while," she said.

Several members of the business crowd left before Ford's arrival, with one saying he had too much work to do and couldn't wait any longer.

devouring local gardens and attracting coyotes and cougars.

Daniel Onischuk, an Edmonton photographer, objected and went to court for an injunction, arguing trapping, sterilizing and relocating the rabbits was a better option. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dine-and-dasher discovered done-in

Authorities are investigating the death of a gastronomic freeloader as a possible murder. Two days after the father of Titus Clarysse found him dead in his apartment, investigators were looking on Thursday for suspects in what a spokesperson called "a case of murder or manslaughter." Clarysse was famed in and around the town of Ghent for walking into any restaurant of his choosing, ordering anything from steak to lobsters and walking out without paying.

Feds push new Jobs Grant package

The federal government has offered the provinces and territories a new Canada Jobs Grant package as part of a "sensitive" third round of negotiations over the controversial proposal, says Employment Minister Jason Kenney.

The original proposal, which came shortly after the last federal budget was introduced, was less than perfect, Kenney acknowledged Thursday as he described a new offer that offers additional "flexibilities" to the provinces.

"I'm not suggesting the initial model that we proposed was ideal; to the contrary," the minister said in a speech to the Toronto Region Board of Trade.

At the same time, however, he expressed frustration with the fact other levels of government have been balking at something that he considers to be a common sense plan.

"It's so blindingly sensible, I don't understand why it's not widely accepted."

The main idea behind the job grant scheme remains intact as the talks enter the latest phase, Kenney said: giving those who create jobs more say over how tax dollars are spent on training programs.

The Canada Jobs Grant model, first proposed by the Harper government in last year's federal budget, was supposed to be in place by April, but several provinces objected because it would have meant an overall cut to federal funding for job training.

Ontario Training Minister Brad Duguid said earlier this week that he remains opposed to the fact that Ottawa intends to finance its share of the program by reducing transfer payments to the provinces.

Ukraine opposition urges ceasefire, but protesters still appear defiant

Uneasy truce.

Leaders offer mixed reports of negotiations with president

A top opposition leader on Thursday urged protesters to maintain a shaky ceasefire with police after at least two demonstrators were killed in clashes this week, but some in the crowd appeared defiant, jeering and chanting "revolution" and "shame."

Emerging from hours-long talks with President Viktor Yanukovich, opposition leader Oleh Tyahnybok asked demonstrators in Kyiv for several more days of a truce, saying the president has agreed to ensure the release of dozens of detained protesters and stop further detentions.

But other opposition leaders offered mixed reports on the outcome of the meeting, with opposition leader Vitali Klitschko saying negotiations had brought little result.

He and Tyahnybok were booed at the barricades by angry demonstrators and the atmosphere appeared tense.

Interior Minister Vitaliy Zakharchenko issued a statement guaranteeing that police would not take action against the protest camp on Independence Square, known as the Maidan. He also called on police to exercise calm and not react to provocations. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rejecting Russian aid

The protests began after Yanukovich turned away from closer ties with the European Union in favour of getting a bailout loan from Russia. They turned violent this week after he pushed through harsh anti-protest laws, rejecting protesters' demands that he resign and call new elections. # Iranian president gets spotlight at Davos forum

Iranian President Hassan Rouhani listens to welcome remarks during a session of the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, Thursday.
MICHEL EULER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In a charm offensive to the global political and business elite, Iranian President Hassan Rouhani set lofty ambitions for his country, including becoming one of the world's top 10 economies.

The first Iranian leader in a decade to visit the World Economic Forum, Rouhani took top billing Thursday, drawing crowds to hear a speech in which he promised greater engagement with the world.

Touting potential investment opportunities of the oil-rich land to the business tycoons in the audience, Rouhani said his country could, with the gradual easing of sanctions, enjoy an economic boom.

And Tehran, he said, is committed to honouring a deal to curb its nuclear program in the hope that will lead to a permanent lifting of economic sanctions, which have battered the Iranian economy over recent years.

"I see the status of Iran pursuing policies of moderation, prudence and hope in the future global economy," said Rouhani. "Iran's economy has so far the potential to be among the world's top 10 in the next three decades."

For 2012, the International Monetary Fund judged Iran to be the 21st biggest economy in the world in terms of annual economic income, or nominal gross domestic product. To get into the top 10 it would have to leapfrog the likes of Switzerland, Turkey and Spain.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Economic sanctions

- Iran has huge riches at its disposal, particularly oil and gas, the workforce is skilled and the country has untapped potential for tourism.
- But the country has largely been cut off from international business since the Iranian Revolution in 1979.

Fatal blaze ravages seniors' home in Quebec town

L'Isle-Verte. Many residents were over 85, and all but a handful were confined to wheelchairs and walkers

Just six months after Canadians were rocked by the Lac-Mégantic tragedy, another Quebec town found itself waiting to learn how many people it had lost after fire ripped through a seniors' residence Thursday.

And just like in Lac-Mégantic, the destruction struck shortly after midnight.

The unsuspecting community this time was L'Isle-Verte, a town of only 1,500 people in Quebec's Lower St. Lawrence.

Provincial police have confirmed that five people are dead and another 30 are missing.

Parts of the Résidence du Havre had sprinklers, while others didn't. The local fire chief said sprinklers did go off, triggering the fire alarm and allowing firefighters to gain access to about one-third of the building.

Thursday's blaze erupted in the old part of the three-storey building, which a Quebec Health Department document from last July states was constructed of wood. The document also says the building had a fire alarm and that each room was equipped with a smoke detector.

Many of the residents were over 85 and all but a handful had limited movement, being confined to wheelchairs and walkers. At least three people were injured, although the extent of their injuries was unclear. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Indian woman says village council ordered gang rape

A 20-year-old Indian woman said she was gang-raped on the orders of a village council because she fell in love with a man from a different ethnic group, police said Thursday.

Twelve suspects and the head of the council have been arrested for the Monday night attack, police said. The woman told police that she lost count of how many men raped her. She was hospitalized Thursday in serious condition.

Television footage showed the woman, her face covered by scarves, being led into a hospital with an IV tube in her arm.

TV news reports said the woman is a member of an ethnic tribal group and the man is a Muslim from a neighbouring village. The man visited the woman's village, Subalpur, on Monday to propose marriage, but was caught by other villagers, and the man and woman were tied to a tree while the village council decided their fate, the reports said.

Police official C. Sudhakar said the village council ordered the man and woman to each pay a fine of 25,000 rupees ($400). The man's family was able to pay, but when the woman's family said they were too poor, the council ordered the gang rape, police said.

A rash of high-profile rapes in India over the past year has sparked widespread outrage over chronic sexual violence and government failures to protect women. The West Bengal case is particularly troubling because it was allegedly ordered by a council made up of village elders. Such councils are not legally binding in India, but they are seen as the will of the local community. The councils decide on social norms in the village, and in some cases they dictate the way women can dress or who they can marry. Those who flout the councils risk being ostracized.

Subalpur is about 180 kilometres north of Kolkata, the capital of West Bengal.

Annie Raja, general secretary of the National Federation of Indian Women, said that such local councils destroy women's rights.

"They are dead set against giving basic human rights to women," she said.

'Unconstitutional'

Virginia AG will no longer defend gay marriage ban

Virginia's attorney general has concluded that the state's ban on gay marriage is unconstitutional and he will no longer defend it in federal lawsuits challenging it, his office said Thursday.

In an email to The Associated Press, Michael Kelly, a spokesman for Attorney General Mark Herring, said the state will instead side with the plaintiffs who are seeking to have the ban struck down.

Herring planned to file a brief Thursday morning with the federal court in Norfolk, where one of the lawsuits is being heard, notifying the court of the state's change in position in the case, Kelly said.

The attorney general decided the ban was unconstitutional after a thorough legal review of the matter, Kelly said.

Virginia has emerged as a critical state in the nationwide fight for gay marriage.

No sign of stopping

Opportunity rover logs 39 km since landing

The rover Opportunity may not be sleek like a brand new car, but it shows no signs of braking even after a decade on Mars.

Scientists and engineers gathered at the NASA Jet Propulsion Laboratory Thursday to celebrate the plucky rover, which has logged 39 kilometres since landing.

Opportunity has been exploring the rim of Endeavour Crater, its fifth crater destination. A new study of rocks examined by Opportunity and published in the journal Science found they're the oldest yet: about 4 billion years of age. The rocks interacted with water during a time when environmental conditions were favourable for microbes.

Opportunity outlasted its twin Spirit, which stopped communicating in 2010 after getting stuck in sand. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mark Adler

MP says comment at Western Wall was 'a joke'

Toronto-area MP Mark Adler says he was just joking when he made a crass comment as Prime Minister Stephen Harper visited the Western Wall in Jerusalem.

Adler, situated behind barricades at the sacred site earlier this week, pleaded with one of Harper's aides to let him into the main event.

"It's the re-election! This is the million-dollar shot!" Adler said.

The MP for York Centre scoffed at reporters on Wednesday when he was asked about the comments in Tel Aviv, where Harper was bestowed with an honorary doctorate from Tel Aviv University.

"You guys don't get a joke, huh? It was all said tongue-in-cheek," Adler said.

The Prime Minister's Office denied Adler was in the doghouse for his remark. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cairo. Held Egyptian-Canadian journalist may go on trial, family says

An Egyptian-Canadian journalist being held in a notorious Cairo prison is no longer being investigated for links to a terrorist group but could nonetheless be put on trial, his family said Thursday.

After nearly a month behind bars without being charged, Mohamed Fahmy continues to be interrogated on suspicion of using illegal equipment, broadcasting false news and is even facing allegations of transmitting false information to CNN, his former employer.

"This is totally insane," Fahmy's brother Sherif said in a phone interview. "Passing false information is insanity and passing false information to his previous employer is more insanity, so we don't know what is going on."

Fahmy was working for Al-Jazeera English when he and two co-workers were arrested Dec. 29. The conditions of his detention, in a cramped, cold, insect-ridden cell, have been troubling. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Risk of genocide.

Tensions flared when hundreds of Christians looted, set fire to Muslim homes and businesses and threatened to go on a killing spree

Interim President Catherine Samba-Panza urged fighters to put down their arms as she took the oath of office Thursday, even as looters pillaged Muslim neighbourhoods and sectarian tensions escalated in the anarchic Central African Republic.

Samba-Panza, the nation's first female leader, was sworn in at a ceremony days after being chosen by a national transitional council. The rebel leader behind the March 2013 coup stepped aside nearly two weeks ago under mounting international criticism of his inability to control his fighters and stem the violence.

In her inaugural address, Samba-Panza urged both Muslim fighters and Christian militiamen to support peace. "I strongly call on the fighters to show patriotism in putting down their weapons," she said. "The ongoing disorder ... will no longer be tolerated."

UN officials have warned that the crisis is at high risk of escalating into a genocide in the country with a history of coups and dictatorship.

Christian Bernis Latakpi, 24, a university student, said he hoped that Samba-Panza, would bring much-needed reconciliation after months of bloodshed. "Since independence, men have always run the country and they have failed at the job," he said. "We're looking to her to quickly bring security and to reunite our Muslim and Christian brothers. # Goodfellas, the sequel: Mobster arrested

Crime doesn't pay. Snitch told FBI robbers didn't get their share of 1978 heist loot, court papers show

An elderly reputed mobster was arrested at his New York City home on Thursday and charged with a 1969 murder and the $6-million US 1978 airport robbery dramatized in the Martin Scorsese movie Goodfellas.

Vincent Asaro, 78, was named along with his son and three other defendants in wide-ranging indictment alleging murder, robbery, extortion, arson and other crimes from the late 1960s through last year. It accused Asaro of helping to direct the Dec. 11, 1978, Lufthansa airlines heist at Kennedy airport — one of the largest cash thefts in American history.

Asaro and his son Jerome, both alleged captains in the Bonanno organized crime family, also were charged in a 1984 robbery of $1.25-million US worth of gold salts from a Federal Express employee.

In addition to the heist, the elder Asaro was charged in the 1969 murder of Paul Katz, whose remains were found last year during an FBI dig at a house once occupied by James "Jimmy the Gent" Burke. Burke, a late Lucchese crime family associate, planned the Lufthansa heist.

Burke inspired Robert De Niro's character in Goodfellas, which was based on Nicholas Pileggi's book Wiseguy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SplashData found 9.8% of users have the passwords 123456 or 12345678.

Are we changing our habits at all?

The main trends are that short numerical passwords are continuing to show up, even though more sites are requiring stronger alphanumeric passwords. Passwords like "adobe123" and "photoshop" showing up from the Adobe security breach last year highlight the risks of basing a password on the app or website you are logging into.

Everything needs a password these days, but how are we to remember them all?

The simplest answer here really is to use a password manager like SplashID Safe. Otherwise, it's difficult or impossible to remember dozens of unique, strong passwords. One way to create more secure passwords that are easy to recall is to start using passphrases, short words with spaces or other characters separating them. It's best to use random words rather than common phrases. For example, "cakes years birthday" or "smiles_light_skip?"

Former Baywatch babe urges Israel to ban fur

Actress and animal rights activist Pamela Anderson is asking Israel's prime minister to endorse a bill banning the sale of clothes made of animal fur.

Fresh off a honeymoon in Israel, Anderson sent a letter to Benjamin Netanyahu on Wednesday urging him to support the legislation. If passed, it would make Israel the first country in the world to impose a national fur clothing ban.

More than 40 lawmakers have endorsed the bill, promoted by the Israel-based International Anti-Fur Coalition.

Netanyahu previously has expressed views sympathetic with the animal rights movement.

In her letter, Anderson said the way animals "suffer and die for fur violates Jewish principles."

She added that by passing the bill, "Israel would set an example of compassion for the rest of the world to follow."

Last bike factory in U.S. closes

Dorel is closing the bicycle industry's last assembly operations in the United States and shifting the work from Pennsylvania to third-party suppliers in Asia.

The Montreal-based company said the change, which will affect about 100 employees, is part of a restructuring at its recreational and leisure division to be completed this year that will "enhance its competitiveness."

"We were the only bicycle factory left in America and you just can't be as competitive as the Far East," chief financial officer Jeffrey Schwartz said in an interview Thursday.

Dorel's plant in Bedford, about 170 kilometres east of Pittsburgh, took a major hit about four years ago when most assembly work was transferred to Taiwan and mainland China, affecting hundreds of jobs.

What remained at the Cannondale plant was the partial assembly of just a few bike models. Parts were shipped to Asia where they were partially assembled and sent back for final assembly. The steps added transportation costs and delayed getting bikes to market.

Schwartz said eliminating those extra steps will save more than $6 million US by 2015, after incurring $14-$16 million US before taxes in restructuring charges, about 70 per cent of them non-cash.

"Maybe it should have been done three years ago but it really wasn't identified properly until now," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

HAVE TO BE BUZZED TO BELIEB

Firmly settled into the new year, with the brisk winter upon us, we watch our resolutions crumbling by the hour. There remains a buzz, no longer of holiday cheer or annoying relatives, but of social media exploding with up-to-the minute news that matters most. Here are some of the items trending highest in this week's Twittersphere.

1 The puppy that lost its way. This week's top hashtags were #JustinBieber and #DUI. People forget that this is just a normal 19-year-old boy, experimenting with drugs, sex and cars. Is it his fault he just happens to have access to the very finest of all three? But he'll be OK, because just like an adorable little puppy, he can poop right on your shoes, and look at you innocently, as if to say, "Wanna rub my belly?" #WeWillAlwaysSupportYouJustin.

2 Dennis Rodman. The surest way for a celebrity (and I use the term loosely here) to trend high is to check into rehab. But this former NBA bad boy was already under fire for his relationship with Kim Jong-un, and compounded it by going nuts in a satellite interview (from North Korea) with CNN anchor Chris Cuomo. Nothing gets folks a-tweetin' like a rant so incoherent, it's incomprehensible to two cultures simultaneously. What's the Korean word for "huh?"

3 Hilton-grooven. Her audacious claim that she was "one of the top 5 DJs in the world" ignited online controversy until Paris Hilton explained that she was merely one of the top five "HIGHEST PAID DJs..." What followed was a global DJ community left in a silent state of melancholy introspection.

4 Really, Rob? Toronto's mayor revived his dwindling buzz with footage of yet another drunken jabberfest earlier this week. Reporters were unable to focus on budget-related questions after seeing him rant in faux-Patois at the Steak Queen restaurant. So much for getting "enough to eat at home."

5 Greatest game ever, dude. The Super Bowl always ranks high in online chatter, but this year features Seattle versus Denver, and takes place in New Jersey, where constituents just re-elected Gov. Chris Christie. So it's hard to gauge whether trending is due to the NFL's huge fan base, or the fact that everyone is stoned. One thing's for sure: Announcers will have to speak very slowly.

6 Tennis, anyone? Eugenie Bouchard became the first Canadian to advance this far in the Australian Open, but apparently that's not as interesting as her crush on Justin Bieber, according to the latest Twitter trend #GenieArmy.

7 In the wrong business. Not on the list just yet, but on the topic of trends, iconic Canadian men's fashion chain Harry Rosen celebrates its 60th anniversary this coming month. I take a moment to reflect back on the memory of all of the contemporary brand-name fashions I was never able to afford, and still can't.

8 Time well spent. This week's highest-ranking online subject went to Oxfam's report that the world's 85 richest people have as much wealth as half of Earth's population. What they don't tell you is that it's because the bottom half spends the majority of their time tweeting and posting selfies on Instagram. The other 85 are shopping at Harry Rosen as we speak.

I, Frankenstein, Aaron Eckhart's martial arts update of the famous Mary Shelley story, wasn't screened for the press in time to meet our deadline, so after a long conversation with our editor the Reel Guys have decided to do a column on Eckhart's oeuvre. At least that's how we see it. Our boss has a different idea. "As your editor I demand a thorough dissection of Eckhart's abs," she wrote before adding: "More than pretty, Eckhart is." What follows is our humble attempt to mix cinematic business with our editor's pleasure.

Reel Guys

CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Why we love Aaron Eckhart

A-lister. He's got the acting chops ... and that cleft. So why isn't he a household name?

Richard: Mark, Aaron Eckhart isn't exactly a household name, but he has appeared in some very big movies. He's the only live-action actor in the Batman films to play both Harvey Dent and his villainous alter-ego Two-Face. The Dark Knight is by far and away his biggest hit, followed by his star-making turn in Erin Brockovich. But despite those box office busters we don't talk about the hand-mentioned abs and is versatile enough to star in everything from video game action movies like Battle: Los Angeles to hardcore dramas like Rabbit Hole and yet doesn't get the same recognition as many of his peers. What's your take on him?

Mark: You mean the cleft that walked like a man? I could probably fit my grad thesis in there! Eckhart exploded onto my radar with two films he did in the late '90s, both by the cynical playwright Neil LaBute: In the Company of Men, and Your Friends & Neighbors. In both films he plays despicable, almost un-watchably misogynistic men. The key word here is almost. As rotten as he behaves in these movies, there's an inchoate grace under the surface that redeems the characters, and it's a testimony to his acting skills that he can keep us watching. And that cleft.

RC: Some like the cleft, some the abs. I like his versatility. In a year span between 2010 and '11 he released three very different movies. In Rabbit Hole, he and Nicole Kidman were a couple trying to deal with the death of their four-year-old son. They are at different stages of their grief, but they share a couple of things: a terrible sense of loss and an inability to know how to deal with it. Terrific stuff. Next was the alien invader movie Battle: Los Angeles followed by The Rum Diaries where he played a slick PR person. Three different movies and three very different performances. Maybe we have a hard time defining him because he constantly does wild career flip-flops.

MB: Or because there's an opacity to him that allows him to play so many compromised characters, allowing us to project our feelings onto him. Look at one of his finest roles, as the tobacco lobbyist in Thank You for Smoking. He's so slick, so shifty, we don't judge him, precisely because we don't really know him. A quality that's great for an actor, but less so for a movie star. I really liked him in Rabbit Hole and Rum Diaries, too, but his mainstream work doesn't register with me as much. Except for his cleft.

RC: He's made a number of movies I wouldn't recommend for the big screen but work well enough as rentals. Two action films, Erased and Suspect Zero, are very VOD friendly and feature many cleft hero shots.

MB: Or two romantic comedies that would have been disastrous without him: No Reservations and Love Happens. He doesn't do nude scenes in them, though, because in close-up you couldn't tell if it were his backside or his cleft.

Whitewash unleashes the cold and the complex upon Thomas Haden Church

Deep freeze. Actor braved both a complicated character study and cornstarch storms for his new role

scene@metronews.ca

It wasn't the wind and snow that Thomas Haden Church found "punishing" when shooting the new psychological thriller Whitewash in northern Quebec, but the lack of it.

"You know how it goes," he says. "You shoot one day and it's the perfect conditions and two days later it's 50 degrees (10 degrees Celsius) and you have to figure out a way to make it match. We had blizzards and we had giant fans with cornstarch."

"When we started shooting

there was a storm blowing in but as God would have it three hours later there's not a flake of snow floating through the air so they pull out the eight-foot fans and crank up the Corvette engines that drive them and start hucking cornstarch at me.

"It is still cold as all get out, and with those fans blowing sometimes you wish the blizzard would come back and they'd turn the fans off. Those fans will fling stuff at you at 60 miles (90 kilometres) an hour. Those things are punishing to stand in front of."

The cornstarch plays a crucial role in the film's opening and defining scene. During a whiteout snowstorm — enhanced with the white, fluffy thickener for extra effect — Church's character Bruce takes a wild, drunken ride on a bulldozer that leaves a man dead.

Unnerved, he hides the body in a snow bank and lams it to the deep woods to avoid police and clear his head.

Thomas Haden Church stars in Whitewash, which opens in Toronto and Ottawa this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

"When I read it a buddy of mine who works with me said, 'You know, sometimes you read 'em and you know what you know. You gotta go.' I knew as soon as I read Whitewash I had to go. The challenges, the character, the uniqueness of the setting, the emotional complexity of what he goes through. There is tragedy but I think by the end of the movie there is this affirmation that everybody landed on the mortal coil where they were supposed to be."

Church is in virtually every scene and delivers an extraordinary, minimalist performance.

He doesn't appear to be doing much, but subtly rides the lines between sanity and insanity, between absurdity and logic, leaving the viewer off balance as the film veers between the present and flashbacks.

"Even as far back as working in television comedy as I did, I always wanted more nuance, more reflection, more moments of whatever the whisper line between comedy and drama is," he says.

"That really is defined by human circumstance and human behaviour. Even when we were promoting this picture that I did called Sideways, we'd do these big Q&As and one time this guy said, 'It must be really interesting. In the dramatic scenes you make very dramatic choices and in the comedic scenes you make very comedic choices.' No man, maybe it sounds a bit elitist or pseudo-intellectual but I make human choices. I'm just trying to play a real guy."

It really is about who's who in Hollywood

Pseudonym valley. Filmmaking tradition of fake credits can get a little tricky come awards season

It's well-established that Alan Smithee has been the go-to pseudonym for film directors wishing to disown stinkers they'd rather not be associated with.

But fake credits abound among beloved movies too, a phenomenon in which filmmakers willingly give up credit out of modesty, politics or just plain mischief.

It's all well and good until awards season rolls around, when venerable institutions including the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences are put in the strange position of announcing nominations for contenders who may not even exist.

Skeptics suspect that may be the case with this year's best film editing category, which includes a nod for someone named John Mac McMurphy for Dallas Buyers Club.

Within hours of the nomination, speculation ran rampant online that McMurphy was actually Dallas Buyers Club director Jean-Marc Vallée, although McMurphy's co-nominee, Montrealer Martin Pensa, would reveal nothing about his partner's identity.

One story said the Academy had confirmed McMurphy was actually a pseudonym for Quebec's Vallée, but Oscar officials could not verify that report.

One Academy publicist said nominees are based on film credits submitted by the studio and "it is immaterial whether the name is a pseudonym or not."

"Often we aren't aware of the use of a pseudonym until years later," the publicist, who requested anonymity, said in an email.

If Vallée did submit a

What's in a name?

In the 1950s, pseudonyms were commonly used in Hollywood to hide the names of suspected communists during the McCarthy era, such as writer Nedrick Young who couldn't work under his own name.

pseudonym to the Academy Awards, he certainly wouldn't be the first to do so.

Joel and Ethan Coen earned an Oscar nomination for best editing for No Country for Old Men under the moniker Roderick Jaynes. At the time, it was the second nod for Jaynes, who also drew attention for editing Fargo.

And Donald Kaufman,

The Academy Awards nominee for best film editing John Mac McMurphy (Dallas Buyers Club) is rumoured to actually be a pseudonym for the film's director, Jean-Marc Vallée THE CANADIAN PRESS the fictional alter-ego of screenwriter Charlie Kaufman, shared a writing credit with the real Kaufman on 2002's Adaptation and was subsequently nominated for a best adapted screenplay trophy.

It was generally known at the time that there was no such person as Donald Kaufman, said the Academy publicist, noting the reference was a tongue-in-cheek nod to the film's plot about a neurotic screenwriter named Charlie Kaufman and his cocky twin brother Donald.

In cases where a nominee used a pseudonym and won, records show that the filmmaker showed up to accept the award. These include writer Hans Székely (who used the name John S. Toldy) in 1940 and blacklisted scribe Nedrick Young (who used the name Nathan E. Douglas) in 1958.

With celluloid withering as the cinema-screening media of choice, the digital revolution is not only here to stay, it is — dare we say — superior to its sprocket-dependent predecessor. Purists be damned, with digital projection you don't get colour fades, melted frames, strip breaks or foreign hairs dancing in the corners of the screen.

If you want to watch your favourite movies and experience them in a state of rebirth, digital is quite simply the way to go.

The iconic exhibitors at Cineplex have embraced this change, hence the latest installment in their annual Great Digital Film Festival, returning January 31st to February 6th to select Cineplex screens across

Planet of the Apes (1968)

It doesn't get much better than this retro-future shock masterpiece, in which Charlton Heston plays an astronaut jettisoned back to the primal future where simians hold court and humans are livestock and worse. A brilliant nightmare that spawned an entire subculture is exhibited here in a gorgeous, crisp transfer.

Brazil (1985)

Terry Gilliam's surrealist dystopian mind-bender has no peer, with kinetic visuals, wild-eyed performances (including a hilarious turn by Robert De Niro) and social commentary smashed into one mad, mad movie. A must-see.

Logan's Run (1976)

Join Michael York and Jenny Agutter as lovers on the run in a beautiful, abstract and distinctly '70s-centric future where the government allows each citizen 30 years of life before they are ritualistically executed. The film is a landscape of blown out whites and becomes an all-consuming environment on the big screen.

Penn State doc gets blessing

Happy Valley. Film exploring sexual-abuse scandal leaves victims, Sandusky and Paterno family members satisfied

The filmmaker behind the new documentary about the Penn State sexual-abuse scandal says that both the family of Joe Paterno and the lawyer for the victims expressed satisfaction with the film.

"To have total polar opposite perspectives feel a sense of gratification that the film represents their perspective accurately is really something I am proud of," said documentarian Amir Bar-Lev in an interview at the Sundance Film Festival, where Happy Valley premiered.

Bar-Lev screened the film for Joe Paterno's widow, Sue, his two sons, Scott and Jay, and attorney Tom Kline before it premiered. All appear in the film.

Happy Valley explores the case that engulfed the town of State College, Penn., where Penn State is based and which is also known as Happy Valley.

Paterno died with a tarnished image and the town was rocked by their fallen saints. Jerry Sandusky did not speak for the movie, but his son Matt Sandusky did.

To get Matt Sandusky to agree to participate in the documentary, Bar-Lev assured him the movie wouldn't solely rely on the stories of Sandusky or Paterno, but would focus on the torn Happy Valley community.

"Matt asked me a lot of questions about my approach," said Bar-Lev. "Convincing him was really about sitting down with him and telling him that this film was called Happy Valley, not Sandusky or Paterno. It was from that meeting that he said yes and agreed to an interview with no stipulations."

On Sunday, Matt Sandusky attended the premiere of Happy Valley. "I felt it was important to share my perspective as a survivor in this documentary," Matt Sandusky said in an email statement. "After seeing the film, I am hopeful that it will help people understand some of what I have gone through."

Matt Sandusky was listed as a defence witness at his father's 2012 trial, but he did not take the stand. Instead, he disclosed through lawyers that he had also been abused.

Grammys forecast is the usual mixed bag

Stunning with a heavy chance of excruciating.
The awards show always throws up a whole load of talent and the odd mismatch on stage

PAT HEALY
Metro World News

When the 56th annual Grammy Awards air on Sunday night, the last thing millions of viewers will be focused on is the awards themselves. What makes the Grammys are the performances. The programmers know this, which is why in recent years they have featured fewer trophy presentations during the televised portion of the ceremony and more of their odd-ball pairings of performers. The results often vary from stunning to excruciating, which is why we always tune in. Here's what to look out for on Sunday night.

LL Cool J
LL is back for his third consecu-

Rapper LL Cool J will once again host the Grammys. GETTY IMAGES FILE

tive year as the host, and if the previous years are any indication, he also swings wildly between cringe-worthy — actually saying the phrase “hash tag” in front of everybody's name he mentions like a verbal tweet — and amazing, kicking it old school at the end of last year's ceremony with Chuck D, DJ Z-

Trip, Tom Morello and Travis Barker. Also, if you're looking for a Grammys drinking game, if you take a drink after every time the host licks his lips, you'll be wasted before a single note-worthy award is given.

Pharrell Williams
The producer had his hand in two of 2013's mega hits, Robin Thicke's Blurred Lines and Daft Punk's Get Lucky, the latter of which he'll perform with everybody's favorite helmeted Frenchmen. With Nile Rodgers and Stevie Wonder also joining in this jam, you can feel it all over, especially as it's rumoured they'll go into Stevie's classic, Sir Duke. It will also be very surprising if you don't see Pharrell at the podium to accept an award at least once. He's nominated for seven of them!

Robin Thicke and Chicago

You guys remember Robin Thicke from the Video Music Awards? He was the one guy that Miley ground upon who wasn't dressed like a giant stuffed animal. Anyway, he's being given another shot at awards show glory, and this time he's sharing the stage with the legendary nine-piece horn outfit Chicago.

Imagine Dragons and Kendrick Lamar

One of the worst moments in Grammy history happened in 2006, when Linkin Park, Jay Z and Paul McCartney tried to create popular mashups that featured their music.

At that point, mashups were pretty much brand new and musicians were still figuring out how to accompany rappers. Eight years later, hip-hop and rock fit much more naturally, so when Imagine Dragons play their Record of the Year nominee, Radioactive — as Kendrick Lamar raps over it with Swimming Pool, from his Album of the Year nominee, Good Kid, M.A.A.D. City — it has serious potential.

Big sloppy rock ending

There's also no star in an all-star jam. It's kind of like an adaptation of the slogan that “there's no I in team.” But in this instance it's not necessarily because of the giant egos on stage as it is the fact that when a ton of people plug in instruments and play together, it's just a mess. Earlier this week it was announced that Dave Grohl was curating the finale for the Grammys, which includes Nine Inch Nails, Queens of the Stone Age and Lindsey Buckingham of Fleetwood Mac.

Jay Z and Beyoncé

Yes, this will be beautiful, but wouldn't it be sublime if hip-hop's royal couple silently acted out a dramatic scene while Lorde performed her multiple nominee Royals? Seriously, think about how much that “you can call me Queen Bey” part would resonate.

Cooking up competition.

MasterChef Canada, an elimination-style contest, is not for the faint of heart

Every chef has a "mean streak," says MasterChef Canada judge Michael Bonacini.

"You have to in this business," insists the food guru, who operates a fleet of Ontario restaurants with partner Peter Oliver. "It can be cutthroat, it can be aggressive, it can be demanding and you have to be constantly 'on' when you're cooking."

Bonacini, along with co-judges Alvin Leung and Claudio Aprile, are putting 50 Canadian home chefs through their paces on MasterChef Canada, airing Monday evenings at 8 p.m. ET on CTV.

The elimination-style cooking contest has had popular incarnations around the world, including the U.S. version hosted by tough-talking Scottish chef Gordon Ramsay. When asked if he'll be the bad cop on MasterChef Canada, Bonacini de-murs.

"You'll have to watch the show to find out," he says.

Shows like MasterChef Canada, Bonacini believes, have proven to be a great source of motivation for home chefs.

"The growth of great TV shows and in particular something like MasterChef Canada definitely inspires people to revisit that burning desire to get into the food business in some way, shape or form," says the chef.

"Certainly I think that what it offers home cooks is a window into professional kitchens." The 50 finalists come from diverse backgrounds, with a plumber, an opera singer and a tattoo artist among the group. Canadian cuisine, he notes, has changed dramatically in the two decades since he opened his upscale Toronto restaurant Canoe with a home-grown focus.

"The momentum that has grown over the last 18 years is enormous," says Bonacini. "I think that we understand in much more detail the local regional culinary flavours that we have to offer, the multiculturalism that the country has to offer, the great ingredients that are locally grown, foraged from east coast to west coast."

"It is that sort of fabric that allows us to showcase all that is Canadian cuisine."

Bonacini says chefs are "competitive by spirit and nature" and have "certain egos." There is a $100,000 prize at stake on MasterChef Canada and the judge advises competitors to "remain focused and go for it."

"You have to come out with your A game every single challenge," says Bonacini.

It sounds like competitors can also expect some brutally honest feedback from the judges. "You can be Mr. Nice Guy for a certain amount of time, but Mr. Nice Guy isn't always there."

The first elimination episode of MasterChef Canada will air following the Super Bowl on Feb. 2.

Homeland can miss the realism mark, ex-CIA operative says

Former CIA operative Valerie Plame has a mixed opinion of Showtime's spy drama Homeland.

Plame said Wednesday the Emmy Award-winning TV series is a compelling drama and that star Claire Danes is "fabulous" as a CIA operations officer.

But Plame told a TV critics' meeting it's not credible that the character's bipolar disorder would go unnoticed. She says the depiction of cellphone use inside CIA headquarters is another gaffe, since the phones are not secure and can be traced.

Plame left the CIA after her covert identity was compromised by information leaked to a newspaper columnist in 2003.

She is among those featured in the PBS documentary series Makers: Women Who Make America, airing later this year.

Big money lawsuits and disputes aplenty, just another day being Gaga

Lady Gaga is trying to keep some things secret, particularly a settlement with a former producer, which she's vying to have sealed, according to Radar Online.

Producer and ex-boyfriend Rob Fusari filed a $30.5 million lawsuit against Gaga in 2010, claiming he helped transform Stefani Germanotta into the pop star she is today. The suit was settled out of court, with the details of the settlement sealed at the time, but now Fusari is being sued by another producer, Wendy Starland, who claims she also helped discover Gaga, and the discovery phase of that suit could unseal the documents from the first suit. "In 2010, Germanotta entered into a confidential settlement agreement with Rob Fusari and Rob Fusari Productions, resolving certain disputes, unrelated to the instant action, that had arisen between them," Gaga's lawyer writes in the filing. "These documents include highly sensitive financial information that could inflict significant professional and competitive harm upon Germanotta if disclosed."

Hudson going 'full circle' to revive ailing cruise firm

Back when she was a nobody, long before she blasted to stardom on American Idol and Dreamgirls, Jennifer Hudson sang on a cruise ship. And on Wednesday, the singer said she would do it again — this time as the headliner for a new concert series on Carnival Cruise Lines called Carnival Live. "I used to work on a cruise ship, a long time ago," said Hudson before performing at a Carnival news conference in midtown Manhattan. "That's what I did before I did American Idol." Her stint aboard a Disney cruise ship was "my test," she said. "Days later, I auditioned for American Idol." Headlining the Carnival series "is like a full circle," she added. Hudson is scheduled to perform June 18 on Carnival Ecstasy and June 19 on Carnival Breeze, both in Cozumel, Mexico. Carnival has struggled to restore its image after three ships broke down last year. Images of passengers stranded at sea, ships towed back to port and trip cancellations created a torrent of bad publicity for the company that depressed ticket prices and revenue.

Good Lorde! Taylor really is BFFs with just about everyone

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Is there anyone Taylor Swift isn't BFFs with? She hangs out with everyone from sitcom stars like Sarah Hyland from Modern Family and to indie darlings like Lena Dunham to fellow pop stars like Selena Gomez. And now, apparently, she's added Lorde to her collection.

In a Rolling Stone profile, Lorde says she often texts Taylor for advice, even about something as minor as which knickknack to buy for her home. "Taylor's supergood at this stuff," the Royals singer says. "She's decorated her own houses for ages."

The two young stars weren't always so love-dovey — Lorde once told a reporter that she thought Swift was a bad influence. "Taylor Swift is so flawless, and so unattainable, and I don't think it's breeding anything good in young girls (who might think) 'I'm never going to be like Taylor Swift, why can't I be as pretty as Lorde?' That's bulls.," she said.

So how did the two end up BFFs? Because Taylor's a class act, pretty much, and sent Lorde a bouquet of roses when Royals hit No. 1. "I was floored," Lorde admits.

Is there anyone Taylor can't win over? I really think she is laying the groundwork for a major showbiz power grab, backed by her cadre of female starlets of every stripe. And I could not love it more.

Shia is just misunderstood guys, seriously it was all art

In case anyone was curious, Shia LaBeouf's plagiarism drama, and the cavalcade of attempted online apologies that followed, was just "meta-modernist performance art," the actor explained in a pair of lengthy and quickly deleted online postings. "All art is either plagiarism or revolution," he wrote. "My use of Twitter started a broad cultural discussion that needs to be had about plagiarism in the digital age and celebrity, social media absurdity. Intentionally oscillating between hope and doubt, sincerity and irony, knowingness and naivety, construction and deconstruction. I addressed the world." Got it.

Though not on par with Robert Burns, Anchorman Ron Burgundy's quote, "I love scotch, scotch, scotch, scotch" is poetry to whisky lovers. Not like scotch needs celebrity endorsement. It's been rocking the spirit world for centuries with a cult of collectors who talk up their inventory numbers with the same relish that a tweeter does followers. And it continues to gain new members.

While single malts (made at a single distillery, in a pot still, from only malted barley) get attention because of big flavours, a scotch producer confessed to me that he felt "the art was really in the blend." Created from a combo of grain and malted whiskies, blends offer a rounded alternative to the aggressiveness of single malts.

Those looking for a tippie to toast Robbie Burns' 255th birthday this weekend might consider The Famous Grouse (750 ml, $28.05 - $29.99), the most popular blended whisky in Scotland. Smooth and lightly malted, its blend includes heavy weight single malts, The Macallan and Highland Park.

FASHIONABLY SOPHISTICATED

If change is indeed the only constant, then Kia is rock steady for 2014.

The automaker really has everything going on, from mid-cycle refreshes of the Soul, Sportage and Optima, to the more thorough makeover of the Sorento tall wagon, to the revival of the Sedona mini-van after taking a year off.

And then there are the totally new cars — a Cadenza large sedan, Rondo family wagon and the new Forte/Forte5/Koup. Let's get moving, shall we?

The Cadenza's introduction is a significant one for this Hyundai subsidiary. The brand that once sold mainly small and inexpensive cars has gradually expanded its lineup to include a variety of smartly styled vehicles that look nothing like their Hyundai counterparts.

Clearly, the Cadenza is Kia's attempt to gain favour with more mature buyers who place pampering content atop their must-have criteria. The interior design work is equally low-key, but is right in step with most luxury-oriented models. The start button fires up a 3.3-litre V6 with 293 horsepower and 255 pound-feet of torque.

Although seemingly tailored for older buyers, the car's "sport-tuned" suspension is somewhat firmer than that of some competitors. Base models pile on the goodies with a leather-fitted interior, 10-way power-adjustable driver's seat, dual-zone climate control with front- and rear-seat ventilation, navigation system with eight-inch touchscreen display, rear camera with backup warning and a 550-watt Infinity-brand sound system. Wow. Not bad for a brand that has become fashionably sophisticated instead of play-it-safe conservative.

That's even more apparent when it comes to the Forte5 hatch that followed the sedan's 2013 calendar-year launch by a few months. Dialed back somewhat, though, is the Forte's power. The new base 1.8-litre engine pumps out 148 horsepower and 131 pound-feet of torque, while the optional 2.0-litre four-cylinder produces 173/154.

For Forte5 buyers, the 2.0 is standard while a turbocharged 1.6-litre four-cylinder is optional. It spools out 201 horsepower and 195 pound-feet of torque. A six-speed manual transmission, or optional six-speed automatic, can be connected to all three powerplants.

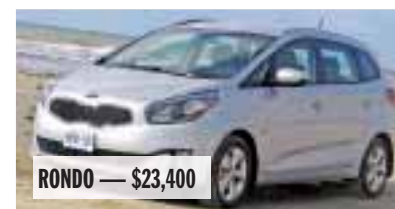

We didn't lump in the Forte Koup here because it really deserves some extra ink. The 2014 redesign really brings the Koup into its own, even though it continues to be based on the Forte sedan's platform. What makes a big difference this time around is the car's more aggressive — and downright attractive — front- and rear-end styling, including a set of massive headlight pods, that sets it apart from its Forte sedan and Forte5 hatchback siblings.

For more room — family room — there aren't many compact wagons that can get away with packaging three rows of seats that real people can actually sit in.

The original Rondo was a decent competitor, but the new version is better looking, more functional and does more with a litre of gasoline. Called the Carens elsewhere in Kia's vast distribution universe, the Rondo is exclusive to the Canadian market.

It's hard to fathom why not since it has a lot to offer, starting with a well-planned interior, that, when not transporting people around, can be converted to a workhorse of cargo carrier. The second row is a tri-folding unit, while the optional third row is a 50:50 bench. Both rows fold as flat as a bowling lane and offer an impressive variety of people and cargo permutations.

No security blanket necessary for Sochi

Opening ceremony. Wickenheiser embraces chance to lead Canadian athletes into Olympics

Hayley Wickenheiser doesn't put much stock in the flag-bearer's curse.

The hockey star, who will carry the Maple Leaf into the opening ceremonies of the Sochi Olympics, says the idea that she and her teammates could be under any more pressure is absurd.

After all, they play a sport that many in Canada consider religion. So any sort of cosmic jinx pales in comparison to the weight of an entire country's expectations for the women's team to win a fourth straight gold medal in Sochi.

"I think there's just too much emphasis put on that," Wickenheiser said Thursday via conference call from Austria.

"The country expects a gold medal. Whether I carry the flag or not, I'm pretty sure our team doesn't feel any extra added incentive that there's more pressure to perform, because we already feel that already."

Not all athletes see it that way. Diver Alexandre Despatie felt it would be a distraction and said he'd decline any offer to carry the flag at the 2012 London Games.

Kayaker Adam van Koeverden carried the flag at the 2008 Beijing Olympics and finished a disappointing eighth in the 1,000 metres — although he did win silver in the 500.

Moguls skier Jean-Luc Brassard blamed his disappointing performance at the 1998 Nagano Olympics on being the flag-bearer a day earlier.

Wickenheiser and her teammates hope the same thing doesn't happen to them. Hockey Canada says the women will march in the Feb. 7 opening ceremonies despite playing their first game the following night versus Switzerland.

Brassard, the assistant chef de mission for the Sochi team, was on the panel that selected Wickenheiser along with chef de mission Steve Podborski, assistant chef France St. Louis and one athlete representative. Hockey Canada nominated her for the honour.

"Throughout her successful career, this Canadian athlete has demonstrated true Canadian grit, patriotism and sportsmanship," said Podborski, adding that Wickenheiser will lead the Canadian team with "the utmost pride and class."

Wickenheiser is embracing the opportunity to put her sport centre stage.

"What I think it does is it shines a very positive light on the sport of women's hockey and just on our sport in general for the world to see," said the 35-year-old forward. "That's a great responsibility and expectation that every nation in the world has to carry in and I think should really embrace." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Now is Kane's time to prove he belongs

THE HOCKEY NEWS

Matt Larkin
winnipeg@metronews.ca

Evander Kane sure picked the right time to contribute. Returning after missing four games with a hand injury, the dynamic left-winger picked up two points, including the game-winner, as the Winnipeg Jets became the first team to beat the powerful Ducks in Anaheim in regulation this season.

Tuesday's victory extended Winnipeg's record to 4-0-0 under new coach Paul Maurice. It was important for Kane to make a mark in the new regime before the caboose left without him. As the Jets teeter on the brink of missing the playoffs again and the trade rumors swirl around Kane as always, now is a crucial time for him to prove he belongs in the Jets' long-term plans.

It's been one problem after another for Kane this season. There was the time Noel left him out of the lineup and Kane claimed he was not injured, but actually had a healthy scratch. There was the horrible November in which he potted one goal. And the various nicks and scratches have piled up: Kane has missed 12 games so far this season with hand and lower-body ailments.

On the bright side, Kane has tantalized as always. He's been the best Jet forward on the ice on many occasions, he's thrown his weight around with reckless abandon and, if he'd played every game this season, he'd be on a 30-goal pace. He's also still just 22 years old.

But now more than ever, Kane must find a way to stay in the Jets lineup. The more the team wins under Maurice without Kane, the more expendable he may appear to Kevin Cheveldayoff, who has a laundry list of teams who'd pay an arm and a leg to give Kane a shot. Also working against Kane is the fact he's one of the only pieces of Winnipeg's expensive core without a no-trade clause.

Not only must Kane stay on the ice, he needs to find his scoring touch down the stretch. If he catches fire and helps the Jets make a strong playoff push, he may cement his status as an untradeable franchise player to build around. If Kane goes cold and the Jets flop again, however, the Jets may look to make major off-season changes.

That's not to say moving Kane would be a smart move for Winnipeg at all. But when a player develops a reputation as difficult to manage, teams almost look for excuses to trade him, as we saw with Tyler Seguin in Boston. So time is of the essence for Kane to prove he's Winnipeg's best player.

Genie Bouchard's pops proud of prodigy's play at Australian Open

Tennis. 19-year-old expected to move into WTA top 20 as she returns to Montreal for Federation Cup match

It was an intense week at the Bouchard household as daughter Eugenie worked her way to the Australian Open semifinals.

"We were yelling like idiots," Mike Bouchard, the player's father, said Thursday of his daughter's stirring win over Ana Ivanovic in the quarter-finals, which made her the first Canadian to reach the semifinals of a Grand Slam tournament since Carling Bassett-Seguso in 1984.

It wasn't quite as frenzied at their Westmount, Que., home two nights later, when Bouchard bowed out with a 6-2, 6-4 loss to fourth-seeded Li Na of China in the semis.

Canadian Eugenie Bouchard listens to a reporter's question after losing to Li Na. SHUJI KAJIYAMA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It was also exciting, but in the first set Li Na came out strong and Genie was a little nervous," he said. "I felt for her, but she came back well in the second set. Overall, it was an excellent tournament."

Bouchard stole the show in Melbourne, where a dozen or so local fans formed Genie's Army to cheer her on and toss her stuffed Australian animals after her wins.

Several commentators spoke of Bouchard, the 2012 Wimbledon junior girls champion, being the next big thing in women's tennis and a potential future Grand Slam tournament winner.

Already, her results are expected to move her from 31st into the top 20 in next week's rankings.

And it has stirred ticket sales for her next appearance on home turf. She will play for Canada against Serbia Feb. 8-9 in a Federation Cup tie at the Claude Robillard Centre in Montreal.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

There is no point being angry about what you have to leave behind. The planets are pointing you in a new direction and urging you to take that first brave step into the unknown.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Why are you so excitable? Whatever the reason, you will be on the go from dawn to dusk today. You may need to rest and get your energy back tomorrow but for now you are a ball of energy.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You don't have to be especially dynamic today. In fact, if you wait for good things to come your way, they will. Also, your way with words will get what you desire in most situations.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Someone will come to you for advice and although you don't want to get involved, you know you can't turn them down. Make sure they know it is only advice. The ultimate responsibility rests with them.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Honesty is essential if you are to resolve an issue that has been dragging on. That does not only mean you being honest with others, it also means others being honest with you. Encourage them to speak up.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You tend to believe in only what you can see and touch. Something will happen today that makes you wonder if there are other forces at work. Can you make them work for you?

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

No matter how many brilliant ideas you have, they don't mean a thing unless you do something with them. For too long you've come up with grand plans, now it's time to act.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 23

There is a reason for everything that happens in life — ultimately there is no such thing as luck. Keep that thought in mind today and it will help you keep your feet on the ground.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 22

Don't take it personally if a friend is overly critical. They are probably more annoyed with themselves than they are with you, but their ego won't let them admit it. They'll make it up to you tomorrow.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may be desperate to be doing something more exciting but don't get so desperate that you act without thinking. If you do, and make a mistake, it will most likely hit you where it hurts most — in your wallet.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

In the eyes of the world, you can do no wrong, so don't worry if you tread on others' toes. Most likely they'll say sorry to you! In every way you are moving faster than everyone.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

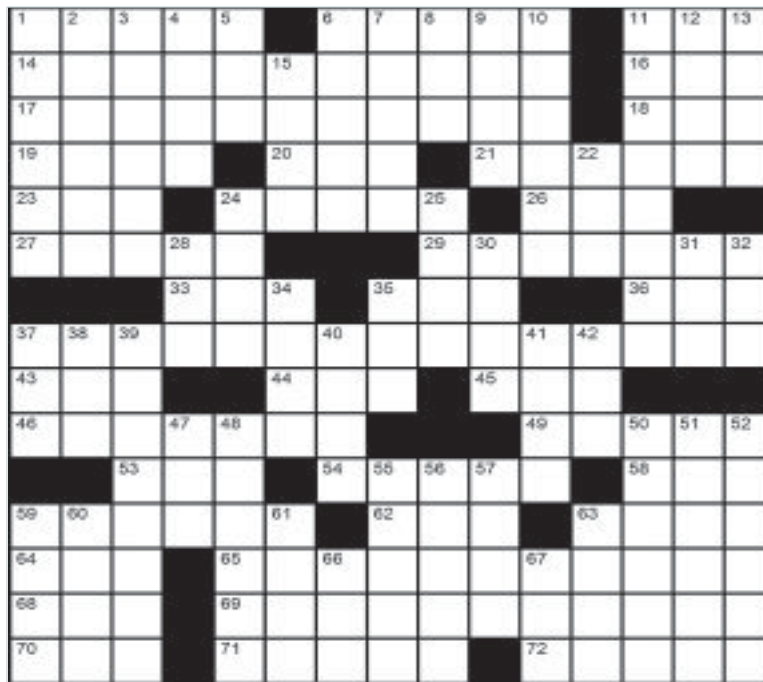

You need to rediscover your passion for a project that started off well but tailed away as other things demanded your time. It doesn't have to be a fantasy that remains unfulfilled. There is still time to make it a success. SALLY BROMPTON
